Trenchless Technology on the Clean Water Project

Michael Mancini, P.E.L.S., Manager of Design and Construction for the Clean Water Project, Metropolitan District Commission, will discuss the use of trenchless technology and a unique tunneling process used on the project. This is a unique opportunity to hear from a key professional for the project owner who will discuss his experience and work on the $1.6 billion underground project in the Greater Hartford area. Utility contractors and other industry representatives have a tremendous opportunity to learn more about this important project and a unique process used on the project.

Join your friends and colleagues for this informational meeting program. Register today!
